

A New Vinyl-Themed Bar and More Seattle Food News You Can Use: June 7, 2019 Edition

by Julianne Bell

This week, a new vinyl-themed bar touches down on Capitol Hill, Puerto Rican fare comes to Interbay, and Kirkland gets a new restaurant with a hearth oven. Plus, Cloudburst Brewing announces its plans for a new taproom, and Hello Robin plots an outpost in University Village. You'll find all that and more below. For more ways to make this weekend delicious, check out our list of National Doughnut Day events in Seattle, our list of Seattle food and drink specials to try in June, and our full food and drink calendar.

Hearth

According to a press release, Kirkland's Heathman Hotel opened its new restaurant Hearth on June 3. As the name suggests, the restaurant focuses on traditional hearth oven cooking techniques such as smoking and slow-roasting and has an open kitchen that showcases its hearth oven. Executive Chef Adam Johnson's locally sourced menu includes dishes like an open-face Dungeness Crab melt with remoulade and gruyere on a house-made English muffin, Hama Hama oysters with charred strawberry vinegar, and a variety of savory flatbreads. The cocktail menu also incorporates elements of the hearth oven theme, with ingredients like fire-roasted jalapeño-infused chartreuse and oven-roasted grapes in the bar's summer sangria.

Kirkland