

Columbia Hospitality to manage the Heathman Hotel in Kirkland, Wash.

by Newsroom | Jan 24, 2017 10:35am

Columbia Hospitality, a Seattle-based hospitality management and consulting company, signed a new management and operating agreement with The Heathman Hotel, effective Jan. 1, 2017. Located in the heart of Kirkland, Wash., and steps away from the downtown waterfront, the independent, full-service hotel and Trellis Restaurant join Columbia Hospitality's portfolio of properties.

“We are thrilled to have Columbia Hospitality join us in taking The Heathman to the next level and are excited for what the future has in store,” Troy Longwith, GM of The Heathman Hotel, said in a statement. “We continually strive to be a distinctive property within the market and believe this new partnership, along with our renovated guestrooms and award-winning dining, will ensure each guest receives a truly unique and personalized experience.”

The property has 4,555 square feet of private dining, meeting and event spaces that accommodate up to 200 guests. Trellis, a locally inspired, 90-seat restaurant and bar located on the ground floor, offers outdoor seating year-round as well as farm-to-table cuisine under the direction of executive chef Brian Scheehser.

“We are thrilled to have Columbia Hospitality join us in taking The Heathman to the next level and are excited for what the future has in store,” Troy Longwith, GM of The Heathman Hotel, said in a statement. “We continually strive to be a distinctive property within the market and believe this new partnership, along with our renovated guestrooms and award-winning dining, will ensure each guest receives a truly unique and personalized experience.”

The property has 4,555 square feet of private dining, meeting and event spaces that accommodate up to 200 guests. Trellis, a locally inspired, 90-seat restaurant and bar located on the ground floor, offers outdoor seating year-round as well as farm-to-table cuisine under the direction of executive chef Brian Scheehser.